

Art, Design and Culture: Programmes to watch.....Suggestions.

Check out the art programmes on BBC iplayer and youtube. Obviously links may no longer be available, so do search and use your common sense.

Art historians, historians and critics to search for: These are experts who reliably make quality but accessible Art, History and Design programmes.

Waldemar Januszczak Art critic and TV documentary producer and presenter. Formally Art Critic of the Guardian newspaper. eg 'The Art Mysteries.'

Janina Ramirez: presented Raiders of the Lost Past, a series about three archaeological finds made in 1939 and Handmade in Bolton, in which she challenged Shaun Greenhalgh, a reformed convicted forger, to recreate artefacts of the past.

Andrew Graham-Dixon: Art historian and author. Expert on Caravaggio.

Mary Beard: Classics professor at the University of Cambridge. Interested in Classical Art and feminism. eg: 'Shock of the Nude.' 'Pompeii- Life and Death.'

There is a new BBC website called 'Culture in Quarantine,' featuring visual arts as well as film, books, theatre, music etc. Do explore this site. It changes often.

<https://www.bbc.co.uk/arts>

14 Inspirational TED Talks for Art Students

<https://theartyteacher.com/ted-talks/>

Follow your interests and document what you saw.

You could: Make notes or a mindmap in the back of a sketchbook. Note down artists name, points of interest or questions which occur to you that you can go on to find the answers to.

Don't forget there may be many connections with your other subjects, particularly, History, English, Design, Film etc.

